

Dr Mansour is musculoskeletal consultant radiologist at Oxford University Hospitals, Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre. He trained at Oxford University Hospitals and obtained the Royal College of Radiologist Fellowship (FRCR) in 2005. Dr Mansour finished a fellowship in musculoskeletal radiology at the Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre Oxford in 2006. He was appointed as Musculoskeletal Consultant Radiologist at University hospital of Wales in Cardiff and honorary clinical teacher at Cardiff University till 2011. He has expertise in MSK magnetic resonance imaging, ultrasound, computed tomography and image-guided diagnostic and therapeutic musculoskeletal interventional procedures. He teaches in national and international courses. He published articles and abstracts in the medical literature and regularly asked to peer review articles for national and international journals. He was selected to be one of the experienced radiologists who provided the diagnostic imaging service for the Olympic athletes during London 2012 Olympic Games and London Athletics Games in 2017. He is a member of the British, European and Asian Musculoskeletal Societies and also member of the Skeletal Society of Radiology (SSR) and International Skeletal Society (ISS). He is an active member of the ISS Outreach Committee and the regional coordinator for North Africa and the Middle East. He is also a BSSR executive committee member.